idol

I look up to the more experienced girls in the Australian Team a lot, and my parents as they both came through elite sport with their own barriers in a different era and they are very humble about their careers

favourite event to race

Time trial is the new favourite - short enough that it's over before you can think about it too much (compared to IP), but long enough that it suits my style of 'sprint'

"Representing Australia for me means a responsibility to show up and compete with integrity and respect"

One of Australia's exciting endurance track prospects, Claudia Marcks has consistently impressed with strong performances at home and abroad.

Marcks has made an immediate impact on the international stage:

- Gold medal – Team pursuit at the 2026 UCI Track World Cup
- Bronze medal – Team pursuit at the 2025 UCI Track Nations Cup

She has built an impressive record at national and Oceania level:

- Back-to-back Australian Champion – 1km time trial (2025 & 2026)
- Australian record holder – 1km time trial
- Australian Champion – elimination race (2024)
- Oceania Champion – Team pursuit & 1km time trial 2026

first person I called after selection news

My parents and old coach

proudest moment of my career so far

Officially being a part of the Australian team squad. I had been pulled in for camps and races with the national team over the last 4/5 years. But to finally be asked to relocate to Adelaide to be a part of the national squad, reinforced all the hard work I had put in over the years to get to this point

"Outside of sport, I would choose to get into sports marketing of some kind, or study interior design"
